Water Memory And It's Influence On The Structure And Health Of Water

Water plays the greatest role in maintaining the quality of life. The better the water, the better the life. After all, water is the elixir of life. The critical factors relating to the quality of the water is related to the health of all living organisms. One very important factor to think about is the health or resonance of the water itself. What we know about the universe and life in general, is that everything is controlled through electro-magnetic frequencies and that all organisms function through the process of electro-chemical transmissions and responses. The more harmonious and resonant the frequencies the better the health and well being of the organism.

In order for water to be it's most healthful it needs to have harmony. It has been shown by various researchers that water that has harmony produces beautiful crystalline hexagonal structures and water that is unhealthy, on the other hand, generally has no structure, broken structure, or pentagonal structure. Through some of Dr. Emoto's work, "Hidden Messages From Water" it has been shown that water taken from pristine sources and frozen to  $-30^{\circ}\text{C}$  and thawed back out to  $-5^{\circ}\text{C}$  then viewed through a microscope can form into beautiful hexagonal structures, similar to what a snowflake looks like. Not only that but by just speaking, thinking, or writing kind and loving words focused towards the water will produce the same effect. The water seems to understand the resonant frequencies of love and kindness as well as those of hatred and ill will and reacts accordingly. It very well may be that water not only has memory and intelligence, but quite possibly consciousness as well.

The point being, water that has been or is polluted with man made contaminants will not develop hexagonal structures as shown by Emoto's work. Water that has been exposed to these pollutants even though filtered has shown to still possess the same resonant frequencies or signatures of the original chemicals. This is basically due to the memory of the water or the water molecules retaining the signature frequencies from the toxins the water has been exposed to. In order for living organisms to flourish they need to be able to consume water with life giving energy. Take for example, city water that flows through miles of pipe before it reaches it's final destination is mostly lifeless or inert and not very life sustaining. In nature, though, as ice or snow melt and the water flows and tumbles across the river bed, the water becomes highly activated and energetic. The vortex motion of the flowing water absorbs resonant frequencies from the bedrock creating an activation of the electrical charge of the hydrogen atoms in the water molecules. These resonating frequencies transmitted from the bedrock at particular wavelengths, cause changes to occur to the chemical structure or bonds of the water molecules. Hence, a life sustaining water with essence and vitality.

Through years of research it was our goal at LifeWater Systems to develop the ultimate water system that not only would address the removal all contaminants from the water but any residual negative frequencies or signatures as well. By rendering the water devoid of all contaminants, neutralize the anions and cations (electrical charge), and erase negative memory, we then restructure the water through mineral entrainment and energetically activate it with the resonating ceramic ores bringing life and harmony back to the water the way nature intended it. This process of revitalizing inanimate water back to an energetic and essential state is fundamental for maintaining a healthier internal and external environment. This is why we call our system The Fountain of Life® because it does just that, provides LifeWater®.
